

Through the responsible use of herbicides, farmers can practice conservation tillage, which reduces the erosion of soil by 360 billion pounds a year.

That's the same weight as 500 Empire State Buildings.

Sustainable food systems help create food security for all.

Learn more about how crop protection technology helps farmers produce more food without needing more land at www.CropLifeAmerica.org.

