

Seed to Plate

How does crop protection fit into food production?

Crop protection products are a vital and necessary part of keeping our farms productive. Rain or shine, from coast to coast and in every season, producers in the U.S. depend on these tools to prevent crop diseases and other threats from depleting yields and causing food waste due to post-harvest loss.